FOREWORDS

The inaugural Mercy Health Accessibility Action Plan will help us advance equality for people with disability by supporting employment opportunities, providing accessible physical environments and enhancing the care we provide.

Group Chief Executive Officer
Adjunct Professor Stephen Cornelissen

It gives me great pleasure to present Mercy Health's first Accessibility Action Plan. This document highlights our commitment to improving outcomes for our employees and those who access our services and to reducing and removing barriers experienced by people with disability.

Mercy Health acknowledges and celebrates the rich diversity of our workplaces and the communities we serve. Our diversity encompasses gender, age, cultural background, sexual orientation, religion and disability.

Mercy Health appreciates that with one in five Australians impacted by disability we have a responsibility not only to care for those affected but also to provide meaningful employment opportunities. We believe in the dignity of every person without exception.

I look forward to reporting on the progress of our Accessibility Action Plan.

Executive Director People, Learning & Culture
Ms Kate McCormack FAHRI

At Mercy Health, equity and inclusion is about accepting and embracing the individual differences that make each of us unique human beings. We value the diverse backgrounds of our employees and the people we serve, and we are committed to ensuring that our organisation and services are equitable, inclusive and accessible to everyone.

Key to the success of Mercy Health's first Accessibility Action Plan is enhancing our understanding of the number and needs of people in our workforce affected by disability, which will in turn help inform the range of initiatives and supports we seek to implement.

In compiling the plan, we consulted across all of Mercy Health's business divisions as well as the Mercy Health Equity and Inclusion Committee. Feedback was also sought from those who access our services.

Thank you to everyone who contributed to the development of this Accessibility Action Plan. I look forward to following its progress and success.

INTRODUCTION

About Mercy Health

Mercy Health is a Catholic organisation grounded in a 2,000-year tradition of caring for others. Founded by the Sisters of Mercy, Mercy Health is made up of 10,000 people who provide acute and subacute hospital care, aged care, mental health programs, maternity and specialist women's health services, early parenting services, home care services and health worker training and development. Mercy Health employs people from many cultures and backgrounds who, irrespective of their beliefs, share a common bond to care for those in need.

Mercy Health cares for communities in Victoria, southern New South Wales, northern Queensland, Western Australia and the Australian Capital Territory.

Our values

Our values guide us in all that we do and reflect the key behaviours that inform our interactions with each other and everyone we serve. Below are some examples of how each of Mercy Health's values relate to and promote inclusion for people with disability:

Compassion

We are present for others in their time of need

Hospitality

We welcome people with warmth and comfort

Respect

We act with integrity and justice and value each person's dignity

Innovation

We draw on research, evidence and teaching to inform what we do

Stewardship

We advocate for those in need and strengthen our ministry and its resources

Teamwork

We work together to progress the Mercy mission

PRIORITISING ACCESSIBILITY

The Mercy Health Strategic Framework 2018-22 recognises how our foundations as a Catholic ministry couple with contemporary influences in shaping our goals for the future. Our Accessibility Action Plan is informed by this framework and considers the dynamic environment in which we work.

An estimated four million people in Australia are living with disability, some of whom will access Mercy Health services in the course of their lives. It is essential that we have the right people and the right spaces in order to continue providing the best care for every person, every time.

Mercy Health also continues to champion equity and inclusion in the workplace. Having a workforce that reflects the communities we serve and tapping into the benefits of diversity puts us in good stead for the future.

OUR APPROACH

Mercy Health’s Accessibility Action Plan will focus on three key areas — our care, our community; our people, our talent; and our settings, our spaces — in order to support all people with disability who choose to work with us or who access our services.

WHAT IS DISABILITY?

There is no universal definition of disability. The Australian Network on Disability describes disability as “any condition that restricts a person’s mental, sensory or mobility functions. It may be caused by accident, trauma, genetics or disease. A disability may be temporary or permanent, total or partial, lifelong or acquired, visible or invisible.”

The United Nations Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities also provides a useful definition in the context of this plan:

“Persons with disabilities include those who have long-term physical, mental, intellectual or sensory impairments which, in interaction with various barriers, may hinder their full and effective participation in society on an equal basis with others.”

In the absence of an Australian charter of human rights, Mercy Health refers to the Victorian Charter of Human Rights and Responsibilities Act 2006 and the ACT Human Rights Act 2004 to inform this plan. The Victorian Charter of Human Rights and Responsibilities Act 2006 recognises that all people are born free and equal in dignity and rights. It is founded on a number of principles, including the principle that human rights belong to all people without discrimination, including disability. Similarly, the ACT Human Rights Act 2004 recognises that everyone has the right to enjoy their human rights without distinction or discrimination of any kind, including disability.

DISABILITY IN AUSTRALIA

One in five Australians has some form of disability and rates of disability increase as people age. About four per cent of children under the age of five have a disability. This increases to 32 per cent by age 60 and 85 per cent by age 90. ^[1]

LOOKING AHEAD

Mercy Health’s Accessibility Action Plan will continue to evolve in step with best practice and our own learnings. We will continue to monitor progress, seek feedback and make improvements as we work together towards an equitable, inclusive and accessible society.

Governance

The Mercy Health Accessibility Action Plan was developed by the Accessibility Action Plan Steering Committee. This group included Health Services and Aged and Community Care executive officers, Communications Manager, Group Manager Consumer Participation and Experience, Organisational Development and Diversity Manager and Diversity and Inclusion Coordinator. The committee consulted across business divisions and sought expert input from external organisations. The plan was reviewed by consumers and endorsed by the Equity and Inclusion Committee.

Reporting

The Mercy Health Equity and Inclusion Committee will monitor progress against the Accessibility Action Plan and report annually to the Executive and Board. We will use the Australian Network on Disability’s Access and Inclusion Index to gauge progress, as well as feedback and consultation with external disability experts as required.
